A visual novel written as a psychological horror RPG where your choices shape your life. Leading to irreversible consequences and determining how your descent into darkness unfolds.

A second existence. Not as a mercy.

Reborn follows the life of a man who is given a second existence—not as a mercy, but as an experiment carried out by the devil.

You are reborn into a new life with no memory of who you were or why the world feels wrong. Strange whispers follow you. Events turn against you. Opportunities decay without explanation.

The most unsettling moments come not from what you see, but from what you understand too late.

The player experience

Choices under pressure

Your decisions influence which characters remain in your life and which paths close permanently.

Multiple endings

Endings shaped by your actions. Even attempts at repentance carry consequences.

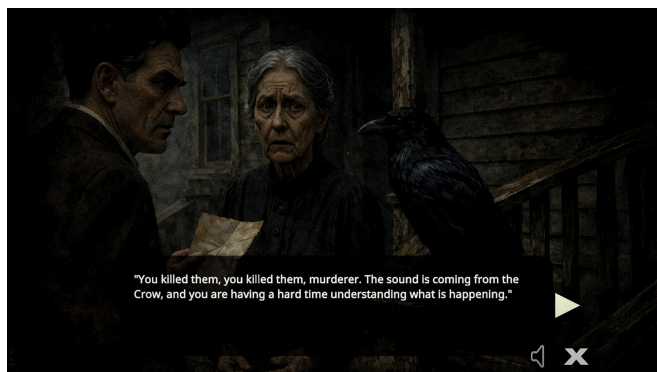

Psychological tests

Interactive scenes where success or failure alters the narrative direction—reflections of the path you have already chosen.

Slow-burn horror

Unease built through implication, silence and inevitability. Violence treated as consequence, not spectacle.
